

Deposit security payable to AM/NS with court: HC to Essar

ISHITA AYAN DUTT
Kolkata, 20 December

Essar House Private (EHPL) — which owns Essar House, the headquarters of Ruias-controlled Essar Group — and Essar Services India (ESIPL) have been directed to deposit refundable security payable to ArcelorMittal Nippon Steel India (AM/NS India) by the Bombay High Court (HC).

The petitions were filed by AM/NS India as urgent protective interim order pre-arbitration under Section 9 of the Arbitration and Conciliation Act, 1996. Both sides agreed to a reference of their disputes to the sole arbitration of Soli Cooper, a senior advocate of the HC.

In an order passed on December 10, EHPL has been ordered and directed to deposit with the prothonotary and senior master an amount of ₹35.5 crore within eight weeks from the date of order; optionally, a bank guarantee of any nationalised bank for the entire amount, along with all interest earned thereon could be furnished.

Till the time the deposit is made or bank guarantees furnished, EHPL has been injuncted

REFUNDABLE DEPOSIT

- Till the time the deposit is made or bank guarantees furnished, EHPL has been injuncted from disposing assets or creating any third-party rights
- AM/NS India sought a deposit of ₹35.51 crore as security for their claim in arbitration
- This was a refundable security deposit payable to it under a business centre agreement dated September 17, 2018 from disposing assets or creating any third-party rights.

If the respondent wished to make an extraordinary disposal of assets, it would have to apply to the court for relief only after at least one week's written prior notice to the advocates for the petitioners (AM/NS India).

AM/NS India sought a deposit of ₹35.51 crore as security for their claim in arbitration. This was a refundable security deposit payable to it under a business centre agreement dated September 17, 2018.

A spokesperson for Essar Group said, "The matter is sub judice and therefore, we can't comment. We are exploring all available options, including appealing to a higher court in this matter."

On April 1, 2016, Essar Steel had entered into a rental agreement with EHPL to occupy the ground floor, podium, and 20 upper floors of Essar House. The agreement was of a leave and license, and was extended by consent to operate until March 31, 2019.

However, on September 17, 2018, Essar Steel entered into the business centre agreement for the corporate insolvency resolution period with EHPL, to avail of business centre facilities on six floors of Essar House. The agreement subsumed the earlier rental agreement.

On November 27, 2019, EHPL asked Essar Steel to vacate premises (after Supreme Court order paved the way for acquisition of Essar Steel by ArcelorMittal and its partner, Nippon Steel); however, the refundable security deposit was not returned after vacating the premises. EHPL had adjusted the amount against receivables from Essar Steel.

AM/NS India also sought a deposit of ₹47.41 crore as refundable security deposit payable upon termination of a support services agreement dated May 15, 2014, with ESIPL.

The court, on December 10, ordered and directed to deposit with the prothonotary and senior master an amount of ₹47.41 crore within eight weeks; optionally, ESIPL may furnish a bank guarantee of any nationalised bank for the entire amount, along with all interest earned thereon.

In addition, within six weeks, a disclosure of all its movable and immovable assets, including monthly receivables without exception, including financial investments. An order of injunction on disposing of assets has also been passed till such time.

Prime Video's 'inside' edge...

Strengths and challenges

At ₹999 a year, the Prime service offers free shipping for eligible products; it also throws in Prime Music and Video subscriptions. How do you compare it to 'pure-play' services like Netflix that are not subsidised by anything, say analysts.

"Amazon's offer is much wider than Netflix's. It relies on so much more than simply video content to advertise and sell Prime memberships. For example, for this year's Prime Day, the key advertising message was a 40 per cent discount on mobile phones," says Tony Gunnarsson, principal analyst, online video at UK-based Omdia. Globally, the record of non-media firms that try their hand at video — Walmart, MediaMarkt, Carrefour, Sainsbury's — is pretty dismal.

Amazon, however, is a big exception. At an estimated $2 billion in revenues and 150 million subscribers, it is, after Netflix's $20 billion and 195 million subscribers, the second-largest subscription-based streaming service in the world. Last year, it spent an estimated $7 billion on content. That is roughly half of what Netflix spent and more than twice that of Hulu or Disney+.

In India, this investment has paid off. At 57 million unique viewers (as of October), India is Prime Video's single-largest market, bringing in roughly half its global reach, according to Comscore's data. It had less than half as many in the US in the same month. A rough calculation puts its India revenues at ₹1,500 crore (about $204 million), making it the largest OTT after YouTube by top line. "In India, Prime and Prime Video came within months of each other. Everyone understands Prime as a holistic programme. Its members come for video and go shopping or vice versa," says Gaurav Gandhi, director and country general manager. Amazon's reach across 4,300 cities and towns works in Prime Video's favour. But as Vijay Subramaniam, director and head content, points out, "A customer won't watch something because it is part of a package."

He won't. In June, 60 OTTs were fighting for the attention of India's 662 million broadband users, of which 395 million watch streaming videos. Media Partners Asia estimates that investment in programming by OTTs more than doubled from ₹1,690 crore in 2017 to ₹4,320 crore in 2019. This in a market that made just ₹8,000 crore in revenues. Clearly, the Indian viewer is pretty pampered.

The learning curve

Streaming came to India in 2008 with Google's YouTube. In 2015, came (now) Disney+ Hotstar, and, in 2016, came Netflix and Prime Video. "When I joined Amazon (in 2016), there was a lot of scepticism. Inside Edge changed everything," says Aparna Purohit, head of India originals.

Prime Video's first original was also the first time a streaming service had put out a new show, not old episodes from TV, online.

For filmmakers, it illustrated the strengths of a creatively liberalising format with the distribution and marketing muscle of TV. It was soon followed by Netflix's Sacred Games and many others.

"There was a massive learning curve on both sides. The industry learnt what it takes to be part of a digital service with global reach," says Subramaniam.

"The more local the stories are, the more global they are. Anything nuanced, authentic and creative works. Every fifth viewer of our originals like Breathe or Mirzapur is from outside of India," says Purohit. This crossing over of shows and films now happens within India, too. "Fifty per cent of the consumption of Indian language movies is outside the home state," points out Gandhi.

From five Indian languages, Prime Video now offers films and shows in nine and a user interface in three, pushing it way ahead of any other global streaming app. "A local content strategy is key. This is why we are investing heavily in both originals and licensed content in India. Outside of the US, we produce the most Amazon originals in India," says Jay Marine, vice-president (worldwide), Prime Video.

From Soorav Pottrui (Tamil) Shakuntala (Hindi), it has bid for some of the biggest movies online. Subramaniam and Purohit keep talking about looking for gaps in the market. When it entered India, comedy was on the rise. "But beyond local performances and YouTube, there was nothing," says Subramaniam. Prime Video actively mined the genre with artistes such as Zakir Khan and Biswa Kalyan Rath before creating Comistaan. The nine-episode series with seven comedians trying to find the next big name in comedy is now in its second season.

The challenges? "Heterogeneity; adding more languages and going down the (population) strata," says Gandhi. Adds Subramaniam, "Infrastructure — post-production, VFX — remains a challenge. The industry needs to look at it, otherwise, it will hamper scale." The competition is not just Netflix, Disney+ Hotstar or MX Player but scores of smaller sharper rivals such as Hoichoi in Bengali and other languages. The viewer has changed too as he overdoes on good films and shows. How will Prime deal with this new ecosystem? "It feels good that the entire ecosystem zeitgeist has changed. It encourages us to push the envelope," says Purohit.

CMS Info Systems to invest ₹1,300 cr on ATM ramp-up

ABHIJIT LELE
Mumbai, 20 December

Baring Private Equity-backed CMS Info Systems (CMS), plans invest upto ₹1,300 crore to scale up its managed ATM business and cash management business in India.

Rajiv Kaul, vice-chairman and wholetime director, CMS Info System, said that starting with a capital expenditure of ₹180-200 crore, the company expects to create 2,000 jobs.

Out of them, 70 per cent of will be blue-collar job opportunities, and the balance 30 per cent white-collar ones.

The investment will be funded through internal accrual and debt. The span for investment would be over seven years, Kaul said.

For the time being, the firm does not envisage specific investment from its owner Baring for these plans, he added. Sion Investment Holdings, an affiliate of Baring Private Equity Asia, holds 100 per cent in the company.

CMS has received mandate from State Bank of India for a deployment of 3,000 ATMs. As a part of the term sheet, CMS will select the site, deploy ATMs, provide cash management services, regular maintenance, and upkeep of ATMs. The contract is valid for seven years, extendable up to three years.

Early this year, it acquired the ATM business of Logitech Solutions (Logitech) in India for NISA Group, business group predominantly in security management. After the acquisition, the number of its ATMs is 72,000 from 62,000 earlier.

Besides CMS, the other players in ATM management include AGS Transact, SIS, and Writers Corp. Apart from ATM and cash management, CMS does maintenance and card personalisation services.

According to data from the Reserve Bank of India, the banking system had 1,13,981 onsite ATMs and 96,068 off-site ATMs at end of September this year. In addition, banks had 3,27,620 micro ATMs at the end of September.

On average CMS manages ₹5,000 crore of cash a day in India. The company's revenue stood at ₹1,400 crore in FY20, increasing 20-25 per cent (year-on-year basis) due to new lines of business, acquisitions, managed services, and technology.

In Jind to hold camp on farm laws, BJP workers face wrath

Disturbance in Jind
EVENT CANCELLED
 BJP workers were to hold a training camp at Gajol village of Jind district from 20th September from the local residents' wrath.
 They reached the village to oppose the local farmers at the knowledge of the agitators. Ahsan Beg said in the Centre office that one BJP district president Rajender Mehta said the party workers had gone to the village to hold "grassroots-level" (training) camp, but were misinterpreted as the agitators when they were seen in the village. The agitators had to be removed from the village. The event was cancelled, the police said. The workers were not allowed to enter the village. The agitators were not allowed to enter the village.
